
areas in proportion to the readings per second; each must be processed before the next arrives