

the surface: height = log of the squared error the same surface seen from above

